HEALTH REPORT SHOWS AN ADDITIONAL NUMBER OF CASES

Full Report Not Made For Monday, But It Shows Malady Spreading

TWO DEATHS ARE REPORTED

The influenza seems to be getting a firmer hold on Charleroi an increase being reported over Saturday and Sunday. According to reports furnished Health Officer Darby Monday evening, with reports from Drs. Barth, Enos and Sloan yet to come, there were 62 new cases of influenza in town in 34 new homes. With the new cases to be reported by the three physicians noted above it is estimated that the total number will be approximately between 80 and 90, certainly a number to cause apprehension. Mr. Darby is at a loss to explain the reason for this heavy increase, he realizes that it is here, and that efforts to combat it must be redoubled. During the past 24 hours there have been two deaths from the disease, one of them bing a babe at the emergency hospital.

Mr. Darby, in this connection, desires to call attention to an incident that came under his observation this morning. It was reported to him that two families, both of whom are suffering from the influenza, were refused their usual milk supply by a dairyman, the excuse being that he did not have a sufficient amount for his other customers. As milk is one of the things that patients suffering from the influenza must have, the Health Officer gives notice that all families suffering from this malady must be supplied with milk before any other customers, and any failure to comply with this regulation will result in the milk being commandeered and distributed to the homes where the inmates are afflicted.

The hospital report up to 10 o'clock this morning showed that four patients had been discharged and four admitted, leaving the number the same, 37, with no deaths up to that time since last Friday.

John Stephenson.

John Stephenson died at his home, 1102 Meadow avenue, Monday evening, November 4, at 7:45 o'clock aged 64 years. Private funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of his daughter, 404 Fourth street, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Monongahela cemetery.

Martha E. McVey.

Martha E, McVay died at her home 1017 McKean avenue, Tuesday morning, November 5, at 1:30 o'clock. Funeral services private Thursday afternoon at one o'clock, interment in Calvary cemetery.

Elizabeth A. Walters.

Elizabeth A. Walters, widow of the late Isiah Walters, formerly of Masontown, died at the home of her son, Harry B. Walters, corner 10th and Fellowfield at 1:30 a. m., November 5th, aged 78 years. Funeral announcement later.

MANY EXPECT TO ATTEND PITT GAME

If weather conditions are at all favorable it is likely that a number of Charleroi people will attend the annual football game at Pittsburg between Pitt and W. & J. The teams this year are very closely matched, with victory likely to go either way. However, W. & J. followers are of the opinion that the Washington county boys have the edge, and if they have any of the breaks at all, should win the game. Pitt is likewise confident and expects to be on the long end of the scoring. The game will be played Saturday.

RELEASE FARM LABOR IN WINTER MONTHS

The Farm Bureau is in receipt of a communication from Mr. J. O. Thomas, Agricultural Adviser to the District Board at Greensburg, which is of decided importance both to the farmers and industries of Washington county. The ruling permitting extra farm help to work in essential industries during the months mentioned appears like a wise one. There should, however, be a definite understanding that those going into such work from the farms are to return in ample time for spring seeding.

To all Local Boards: After consideration of the fact that there is a period during the winter months when less labor is required on the farms than during the busy season and after consultation with a representative from General Crowder's Department in Washington, we have decided to permit registrants who have deferred classification as farm workers to engage in some other essential industry during the months of December, January and February. We do this on account of the great shortage of labor and we might add, at the suggestion of some of the Local Boards. Registrants desiring to do this will file their application with their recommendation and we will notify the registrants and the Local Boards of our decision in each case. This permission will only be granted where it is clearly apparent that the temporary absence of the farm worker will not in any way reduce the productivity of the farm, and registrants will be expected to act in the utmost good faith or suffer a reclassification. The whole object is to keep all labor employed in essential war industries up to the maximum.

District Board No. 3, Western

Agnes Feeney.

Agnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Feeney, died at the home of her parents, 321 McKean avenue, this morning at 11:30 o'clock in the seventh year of her age. Private funeral services Thursday at 9 o'clock a. m., with interment in Calvary cemetery, Coal Centre.

Tells of His Escape From Sinking Transport

Mr. and Mrs. Muckle of 1103 McKean avenue, are in receipt of a letter from their son Harry, who was on the transport Otranto, which was rammed and sunk off the coast of Ireland on the 6th of October.

The letter is written on stationery of the London Branch of the American Red Cross and is dated from the Belfast Branch 41 Ocean Buildings, and is as follows:

Dear Father and Mother—Just a few lines to let you know that I am safe and in the best of health. We left New York on Wednesday, September 25 and we had fair weather until yesterday. We struck a storm off the coast of Ireland and one of our own ships ran into us and made a hole in the side of our ship big enough for a horse and wagon to go through. That happened at (hour censored.)

I had been on guard all night. When I came up on deck I had my overcoat and belt with bayonet and canteen on, as I had to go on duty again at (hour censored.) I was leaning up against the rail watching the waves. They were running as high as the ship, when I saw the boat that had been running along side of us turn and come right toward us. We all ran to the other side of the ship. The other boat hit us about midship and buried its bow in the side of our ship and then back away and was lost from sight. We have not heard whether they were damaged much or what happened to them.

Our ship started to fill up with water and they told us to take our places at the boats. There was no panic, everybody kept cool and bided their time. My lifeboat was crushed in the collision, so we went over where the rafts were and waited. We could see the coast of Ireland about 10 miles off, so we had hopes of getting to shore. The wind and waves were blowing us into shore all the time. We drifted until after 11 o'clock and then we could make out the land and see it was nothing but rock and straight up, so we could not land there, as the rocks would break us to pieces.

The ship was listing to one side and we were expecting to go down any minute, so I went up to the officers' deck that I might have lots of room to jump. Just as I reached that point a submarine destroyer came in sight and kept working up alongside. When it reached our ship the bugle sounded, "Every man for himself." The waves would carry the destroyed up against our ship and they would come together so hard you would think they would smash each other to pieces, and then the waves would carry the destroyer back. I was on B deck next to the top, so I got up on the rail and the third time she came up I jumped about 20 feet on to her deck. Some of the fellows got hurt when they jumped, but I didn't get a scratch. I was quite lucky. I was on the (censored.) I guess you will have read about it. We left the ship about one o'clock and got into Belfast, Ireland, about (censored) and they put us in barracks and took the fellows that had been hurt to hospitals; gave us dry clothes, something to eat and anything we wanted. The soldiers quartered here came to our barracks and gave us cigarettes and matches; the Red Cross gave us everything we needed and believe me it was just like getting into heaven after being down in the destroyer with port holes closed for 12 hours. I thought I would like the English soldiers, but I find they are the best fellows you want to meet and will do anything they can for an American to make him feel at home.

We certainly had some trip. The sailors say they never made a trip with so much good weather and so much bad luck. When we were five days out we ran into a three-masted schooner about 9 o'clock at night. We got the crew aboard our ship and sank the schooner with a 6-inch gun. It took 25 shots to finish her. The gunner hit it 21 times out of the 25 at about a quarter of a mile away. It was a French schooner and the crew were still with us when we were wrecked. I don't know how many got off the ship. There were about (censored) aboard and about 300 in our bunch. They are liable to bring the rest in any time. We have not heard yet how they made out. There were three destroyrs with the convoy and one of them might get the rest. The last I saw of the ship she was lying away over on her side, aground and had her anchor down. She might stay up for a week for all we know, but it didn't look that way to me, so I left her and I am glad of it.

Don't worry about me as I am all right and am having the time of my life. I will have to close now as the Red Cross is giving us a supper and after that the British Military Council is to take us to a show. Belfast is some town, and they are nice people. Will send address later. Goodbye. From your son, Harry.

HUNTERS MUST HAVE REGULAR LICENSE

Deputy State Game Protector Joseph Kennedy, of Monongahela, has received notice from Joseph B. Kalbfus, secretary of the State Game Commission, to the effect that it had been reported to the game commission that some Washington county hunters are using illegal licenses this year.

Secretary Kalbfus some time ago provided the county treasurer with hunter licenses and he in turn distributed them to justices of the peace in various parts of the county. There now appears an unaccounted for shortage in some sections and hunters are using receipts for licenses for hunting instead of the regular licenses until their licenses arrive. Secretary Kalbfus states that such practices are not allowed and if continued prosecutions will result.

CHARLEROI SENDS SUGAR BY TRUCK TO WASHINGTON

The Fox Grocery Company of Charleroi took a large shipment of sugar by truck to Washington on Monday for distribution among the grocers of that town who have been short of the product. Approximately 7,000 pounds were taken over. The same company had sent a large shipment in the same manner on Saturday last to relieve the situation there.

PREDICTS VICTORY FOR REPUBLICAN TICKET

A. V. Lewis, chairman of the Republican county committee, says that the Wilson statement undoubtedly helped the Republican ticket in Washington county and that a much larger Republican vote will be polled than would have been otherwise. Mr. Lewis predicts a plurality in the county for the entire Republican ticket of from 4,000 to 5,000. In some few sections of the county, Judge Bonniwell, the Democratic candidate for governor, has some active supporters who are trying to make a good showing, which may cut in on the Republican vote, but this will be more than [illegible] by the votes of [illegible] who will not support [illegible] because of his attitude on the liquor question.

Mr. Lewis has received reports from every precinct chairman and is confident that the Republicans will carry the county by a plurality as stated and that there will be little cutting of the ticket on the part of the Republicans.

Congressman Henry W. Temple for Congress, will carry every county in the district over his Democratic opponent, while Joseph A. Herron will have two or three times the Republican plurality in this county to counterbalance Senator Stewart's Democratic plurality in his own county of Greene, D. M. Curran, Dr. J. Add Sprowls and George T. Walker, the Republican candidates for Assembly all appear to be assured of an election by the normal Republican majority.

It is believed that a majority of the voters in Washington county irrespective of party will favor the $50,000,000 road bond issue.

Conditions Improving In The State, Which May Permit Lifting Ban

PLENTY OF HELP NOW AVAILABLE

According to advices from Harrisburg, Dr. B. Franklin Royer acting commissioner of health, may announce before the end of the week the lifting of the quarantine in every county in the commonwealth with the exception of a few towns and villages where conditions still continue bad.

He also said that for the first time since the epidemic invaded Pennsylvania there were enough nurses and physicians available at the present time to supply the demand in the various section of the state where the epidemic is still raging.

If the ban should be lifted this week, which many people hope it will be, it will permit a resumption of the normal condition of affairs. Churches and schools will be opened, while the moving picture houses and other places which have been closed will be open to the public. Public assemblages of all kinds will also be permitted, while a general resumption of athletics will take place. The people have borne the restrictions with but little complaint, but they will rejoice that health conditions have so far improved as to permit the quarantine to be lifted.

The Pittsburg situation was watched by people outside that city with great interest, in order to see what the state authorities would do. While the theatres opened for business, the saloons decided that the best thing to do was to remain closed, except in a few instances. However the state authorities promise to bring action against all infringement of the regulations, the outcome of which will be watched with great interest.

Charleroi people will welcome the lifting of the ban, as well as every other community in the state. It has been a long period of restraint, but the decree of the state was accepted in good faith, citizens believing it was for the best interests of all concerned.

MAY PLAY GAME IN WEST NEWTON

Should the health quarantine in Charleroi be still in force on Friday of this week, the local High School football team will likely go to West Newton to play the scheduled game with the High School team of that town. The management is hoping that local conditions will be such that the game can be played in Charleroi, but rather than miss the date the local eleven will go to West Newton, where the ban is said to have been lifted locally, as the public schools are to be opened tomorrow. The remainder of the schedule for the local team includes the Duquesne University High of Pittsburg for the 16th, Monongahela for the 23rd, with the closing games of the season with [illegible] on Thanksgiving Day, the 28.

OUR DUTY

In these trying times of war and pestilence, when the boys across the sea and those in cantonments are giving their best services to the country when civilians from every walk of life are supporting the government in all of its undertakings to carry on the war; when millions of our home people are buying Liberty Bonds and giving their money to keep the Red Cross and the United War Work activities going at full speed; when all of us are giving of our energy to assist in many ways to "carry on," it certainly comes with a shock to our sensibilities to believe that any class or calling is not keeping in step with the general forward movement of the people of any community and are not doing their "bit," nor their best in whatever line of duty they may be called.

During the past three weeks our community has been passing through an epidemic of influenza, which resulted in many of our people being taken down with the malady in many cases, patients being quite ill, but the greater majority of them needing the services of physicians. True our home force of physicians has been greatly decimated because of the demands made by the government upon us, taking away quite a number for duty overseas and in cantonments, to minister to the wants of the soldiers. The absence of these physicians has placed a greater responsibility of those remaining at home, because the work that was formerly done by all must now fall upon the lesser number.

In the epidemic from which we are now suffering it is attested that some of our physicians have responded nobly, in fact have done more than their share; have given to the limit in their energy and endurance and have carried comfort and cheer into many homes that had been invaded by the malady which has caused so much sorrow and trouble not only in Charleroi, but in practically every community in the state.

On the other hand, it is said there have been those of the medical fraternity who have not taken their full share of the burden and have chosen from among those who wished their services, while other calls have gone unheeded. If these statements be true, and we hope they are not, if there has been a failure to take up the responsibility which has been imposed; if calls have been refused that could have been answered; if the financial feature has entered into any decisions which prompted any physician to refuse a call, then it would seem that some of our men in the medical profession have failed to live up the high ideals which have continually surrounded this calling and which in the main have been nobly sustained by every man who has entered it.

That the "servant is worthy of his hire" is a very true saying, but in times like these, with war, pestilence, and in some parts of the world, famine prevailing, there are many of our citizens who have given most generously of their time and their energy and money to assist in the alleviation of the ills of the world, believing it "more blessed to give than to receive," their reward being a consciousness of "well done." They have asked no compensation, they have only asked to serve, and whatever that service might be they have given it gladly and willingly. Not that physicians should serve without pay, but rather, in times of epidemic such as we now have there should be a generous response to service and a "team work" on the part of the medical fraternity that would insure attention to every one suffering, regardless of their circumstances. We are asked to give—our services, our money, our energy, and if these had not been given by the people of the United States, the Red Cross, the United War Work Activities, the success of the Liberty Bond campaigns would have been an impossibility and the war in which we are now engaged, and the very life of the nation, would have been lost.

GIVING SERVICE

Washington county is preparing to enter the big campaign which is about to raise $170,500,000 for the various war activities and which have to do the personal welfare and comfort of the men in the service of the United States.

While Charleroi will have no part in the campaign, taking care of its obligations through the War Chest fund, other communities in the county are preparing to give the best that is in them to "put over" the drive which will mean a total of $350,000 from this one section of the commonwealth.

It is a noble work in which many will be engaged, all the way down from the general executive committee, to the various committees in different communities, to the teams and the members thereof, each and all of which will have a definite and fixed duty to perform.

Some people may think, what's the use of this campaign—peace will soon be here? There is in fact more need now than ever that the various activities which minister to the social life of the boys in khaki be kept in the highest state of efficiency and this can only be done by providing the money by means of which these organizations can be kept going.

Included in this great campaign is the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the K. of C., Y. M. H. A., War Camp Community Service, American Library Service and the Salvation Army. Every one of them has a place in the life of the soldier, and during the period of demobilization, even if it should be near at hand, and which by the way will be the most trying period in the life of the soldier, it will bring that division and entertainment to the men just back from the trenches that will keep up the morale and the spirit of the men and send them back home in the best possible shape. There is need for every dollar asked for by these united activities, and the money we give is only a small part of the debt we owe to the boys who were ready to give all that the world be a safe place in which to live.

BEWARE THE HUN

It looks like the breaking up of the Central powers of Europe. Already three of them have surrendered leaving Germany alone in the battle against the allied powers. Austro-Hungary was the latest to ask for an armistice, which was granted on Sunday and made effective on Monday, by the terms of which that empire is entirely eliminated as a belligerent.

The allied armies now have but Germany to face, and with the armies of Italy and those which opposed Turkey, to assist, as well as allowing all of the nations to concentrate their energies along the western front, it cannot be long before Germany will be yelling "Kamerad," which apparently has been the national watchword for many months, and agreeing to surrender.

At the same time it is well to watch the Hun. He is not to be trusted. If there is any loophole through which he can escape from the coils now tightening around him he will do so, regardless of the methods that might have to be pursued in order to accomplish his purpose. Germany's fate is sealed. There is no possibility of that nation escaping the just fate which awaits, unless it should ze through negotiations. There should be an unconditional surrender, after which the allied powers should impose the peace terms. The war is won—it is a question if there be many more encounters with the retreating Huns; they will want to reach the Rhine as rapidly as possible, but we do not want to give away any advantage we have gained. Justice for all of the powers of the Central group will be punishment enough for them.

Eskimo Author Tale.

"Adventures of 'Ki-ya-yuk-tua-look,'" a tale of the wanderings of a character in Eskimo lore, was the only article published in a recent issue of the Eskimo, a native school magazine. The story, written by a native, is believed to be as vivid to the natives of Eskimo-land as the stories of Ulysses were to the Greeks and the Sagas to the Norsemen. Joe Sekonik, an Eskimo, the author, is said to have spent much time gathering his material from the old folk of the Kavalina section, who heard it from their fathers. According to the tale, "Ki-ya-yuk-tua-look," the hero, was the father of the Kavalina tribe. The hero wandered into many parts of northwestern Alaska, meeting strange adventures, fighting hostile natives and finally killing a giant. The tale tells of life of the early Eskimos, of their belief in magic and their harsh treatment of strangers.

Montana's Old Capital.

Tourists visit Bannack, the old capital of Montana, occasionally to look at the graves of the road agents who are buried on the hill back of the town, and to see the scenes of the raids of the storied Plummer and his band of outlaws. A good road leads from the park-to-park trail to the old mining town, and the distance is only 30 miles from Dillon, where the park-to-park road taps the Butte-to-Salt Lake trail. The time will come when Bannack will be a sight-seeing point for tourists from other states, as well as the citizens of this city, who have had occasion to spend the day in the oldest mining town in the state and the seat of Montana's first territorial government.

Swimming an Excellent Exercise.

Swimming is undoubtedly one of the greatest all around body builders. It is best to try to do your swimming in salt water which is exposed to sunlight. One can usually bathe in such water as long as he feels comfortable, the fleshiness and physical condition of the individual governing the duration of time in the water. Thin and rawboned persons cannot usually stay in the water long. Fleshy persons can stand much more of it. Some persons should not attempt to remain in the water more than 15 minutes at a time, while others, especially when accustomed to it, can remain in the water for hours and feel no bad effects.—Physical Culture.

Boycott Author's Father.

The Irish Times records disturbances in Westmeath provoked solely by a novel written by Brinsley Macnamara, a native of Dublin. The book is full of local color and the inhabitants visited their indignation on the father of the author, a local schoolmaster, and attempted to evict him from the school. They were not successful, but they prevented their children from attending the school, which was practically closed. The population is, however, not united in approval of these methods of literary censorship and the event led to the breaking up of the local Sinn Fein and volunteer organizations, the leaders of which discouraged the protests.

King John's Treasure.

Every one knows the story of how King John's treasure was overwhelmed in the Wash. Confirmation of this was given a few years ago, when a solid gold circlet was cast up by the sea at Wolferton. Before Cromer became a pleasant holiday resort its place was taken by the old town of Shipden, which now lies beneath the waves. These waves brought from Shipden onto the sands of Cromer hundreds of gold nobles and silver pennies, most of which were bought up by antiquarians, who had immediately rushed to Cromer on hearing of the discovery.

Caxton's Gift to the World.

Sixty-five works, translated and original, are assigned to the pen and press of Caxton. For seventeen years he carried on his work, dying in 1419. He was buried at St. Margaret's church not far from the scene of his labors that made him famous. One of Caxton's assistants was Richard Pynson who received the valuable appointment of king's printer, being the first on the long list of those who have borne that title. The title is used in Canada, the head of the department of the public service doing the government printing being called the king's printer.

Famous French Cathedrals.

Each of the four great cathedrals of France had its own peculiar interest and beauty. Paris shows the transition between the Romanesque and the Gothic. Chartres is unrivaled for its wealth of stained glass. Amiens has the most perfect development of line, and its nave, 115 feet above the pavement, is one of the wonders of the world. Reims represented the end of the great period of Gothic construction, but in the richnes of its carving it stood alone.

Language of Few Words.

The Sierra Madre mountains, in northern Mexico, are inhabited by a curious race called the Tarahumaris. While the majority are cave-dwellers, many families reside in small villages all of which are about 8,000 feet above the sea level. The food of these people is maize, from which they manufacture a drink called teshuin. They are unable to count beyond ten and their language is limited to 300 words.

GIVES ADVICE TO SUFFERERS

Misery Was His Daily Companion Until Master Medicine Came to His Relief

"I had catarrh of the stomach in its most drastic form," says Henry Fenstermacker a well-known cement worker, of Allentown, Pa.

"This had spread down into my lower bowels and words cannot describe my suffereings.

"I hated to see morning come, for as soon as I got up I would suffer an attack of nausea and there would come a boring pain in my abdomen that would double me up like a jackknife.

"My appetite was good, but I didn't dare to eat, for so sure as I ate even the simpliest food there would follow those agonizing pains. I also suffered constantly from sick headache.

"I tried remedy after remedy and I don't know how many prescriptions but I just kept on getting worse instead of better.

"I had almost lost hope of ever getting well when I began using Tanlac. It was wonderfud how quickly it relieved me.

"Now I have been entirely relieved and have no more suffering. Those pains in my stomach have disappeared, my bowels are as regular as clock work, my headaches are gone and I can eat heartily and enjoy every mouthful."

Tanlac, the famous Master Medicine, is now sold here by Pipers Pharmacy.

They Keep To The Top Notch of Health

The spirit of the times demands perfect health and nerves, and keeping them up to the highest degree of efficiency.

Wise men and women have learned that it does not pay to allow health or nerves to run down and are quick to take advantage of Nature's greatest red blood and nerve tonic, Phosphated Iron, the minute they feel they are slowing up.

Whatever your work may be there is no reason why it should continue to tire you; work should only use the right amount of your energy. It is trying to work on your nerves and forcing yourself that wastes your strength, runs you down, gives you those restless nights, loss of appetite and indigestion, when you get up in the morning as tired as when you went to bed.

There is no sense in anyone being a victim of ill health, poor blood, over work, nerves or the blues when Phosphated Iron will afford such prompt and permanent relief.

All over the country men and women in every walk of life lay their good health, strength and nerves of iron to the use of Phosphated Iron, the red blood and nerve builder, and it will also put you on your feet, make you feel like a live one. It produces results that last, that's what counts, no "if's" about it.

To insure physicians and their patients getting the genuine Phosphated Iron we have put in capsules only. Do not take pills or tablets. Insist on capsules.

Helping at Home

YESTERDAY afternoon as I walked into Mrs. Shepherd's home just across the street, I heard her say over the telephone: "That's all I'll need today, thank you."

A few minutes later, she exclaimed, "There! I've forgotten the coffee. I must telephone at once."

I wondered, as she made a second call, which was the more important—the war or her forgotten coffee? If she had only made a list and checked off each article, I know she could have saved a telephone message. And every telephone call saved releases the telephone equipment and the time of the operator for serving the needs of the war program.

The Telephone Company is looking to women in the home to help, and it is just by avoiding "extra" telephone calls that women can do their part.

A series of intimate talks on conserving telephone usage written by a woman, from a woman's point of view and for women.

Sheep From the Spanish Armada.

The Herdwicks are perhaps the most interesting of British sheep. Their origin is wrapped in mystery, and, like many other mysteries, they are supposed to have been upon one of the vessels belonging to the Spanish armada wrecked on the north coast. Some authorities, however, consider that they are of Scandinavian origin, as the special counting used for the sheep is said to be derived from Scandinavian words. It varies slightly in different districts, but the numerals are dying out, being only used by the older farmers. They are from one up to twenty—yan, taen, tedderte, mederte, pimp, haata, slata, lowra, dowra, dick, yan-a-dick, taen-a-dick, tedder-a-dick, medder-a-dick, nimph, yan-a-nimph, taen-a-nimph, tedder-a-nimph, medder-a-nimph, giggot.

Primitive Ingenuity.

The natives of Torres Straits, Queensland, make numerous ornaments out of tortoise and pearl shells. Hair combs, earrings, finger rings, chinas and brooches made of tortoise shell and inlaid with mother-of-pearl are given an artistic finish. And in most cases the only tool used is an old knife or a piece of broken glass. In [illegible] the homes of the white residents of Thursday island, North Queensland, serviette rings are made of tortoise shell, ornamented with choice pieces of pearl, or silver, or gold fillings. The tortoise shell, when heated, becomes very pliable and can be twisted to any shape required; and it is when the shell is in a heated state that the pearl or metal pieces are inlaid in the shape of letters, or stars, moon, the Southern cross, etc.

Take Shower Bath at Slant.

That the oblique shower, at an angle of 45 degrees, is far preferable to the vertical overhead shower is urged by Dr. Simon Baruch in the Journal of the American Medical Association. The vertical shower is well enough for simple cleansing, but an equally if not more important feature of the shower is the refreshment and invigoration produced by the forcible impact of the water on the skin nerves and muscular structures. The pressure of the water is lost on the hairy scalp, from which it trickles over the body, while the oblique shower strikes the chest, back and sides and stimulates the body generally.

Early Bagdad Literature.

It may come as a shock, but the fact remains that before Omar Khayyam Bagdad had a literature. More than that, the thirteenth century in Bagdad witnessed the writing of a "Dictionary of National Biography," which was devoted solely to the authors of Bagdad and their works. The man who delights to accumulate odd bits of knowledge may know of this remarkable work, but the general public never would have heard of it if it had not been for E. V. Lucas, the English writer, whose "A Boswell of Baghdad" has been published in this country by the George H. Doran Company.

A PLAIN TRUTH

A man may patronize the mail order houses for years, may send them in that time hundreds of dollars, and at the same time they would not accommodate him for a two-cent stamp. This is the plain, unvarnished truth. If you think otherwise try it for yourself and see. These out-of-town houses do not know you -- do not care to know you -- are not interested in you in any way--only in the money you send them. Spend your money with your own townsmen who know you for what you really are, who appreciate your worth, your business, your assistance in building up home interests.
